On day 620, at the pit by the Acheron, [[people/teiresias]] gave the forecast and the shades came after him. [[people/anticleia]] told him what had killed her. [[people/agamemnon]] advised a secret landing, and [[people/achilles]] would not be consoled.

> Bring your ship in to your own country secretly, not in the open. There is no trusting women any more.
>
> Agamemnon, among the dead `people/agamemnon.md`
>
> The advice to keep for the landing on Ithaca.

> I would rather work the land as another man's hired hand, with no land of my own, than be lord over all the dead.
>
> Achilles, among the dead `people/achilles.md`

SUPPORTING FILES

knowledge/rites-for-the-dead.md
A trench a cubit each way, four pourings, barley, the vows, then the blood. Keep the others back with the sword until Teiresias has drunk.

knowledge/order-of-the-shades.md Elpenor first, unburied. Then my mother, whom I had to keep from the blood. Then Teiresias. Then the rest, and Ajax, who would not speak.

people/anticleia.md
Mother. Alive at the sailing; met among the dead on day 620. Died of missing me.

people/agamemnon.md
Commander at Troy. Murdered at his own table on coming home. His advice: land in secret.

people/achilles.md
Best of the army at Troy. Among the dead he would rather be a hired hand above ground.