Scylla or Charybdis

The count

Circe described both hazards before the strait. Scylla meant six certain losses; Charybdis risked the ship and every person aboard.

CONSIDERATION	SCYLLA	CHARYBDIS
Losses	Six men	All hands at risk
Ship	Survives	Lost in a swallow
Certainty	Certain	Three times a day
Advice	Circe recommended this shore	Avoid

Decision and consequence

Decided: Scylla. Held the Calabrian shore; six were taken from the deck. Those six are included in the closed crew ledger.

> The crew were warned about Charybdis and not about Scylla. That silence is the part still worth reviewing.

Questions retained

- [ ] Would the six have rowed if they had known?
- [ ] Did this silence weaken trust before Thrinacia?
